1

Strength & durability

Wear-resistant surface layer, HDF Core

- Surface of melamine resin reinforced with aluminium oxide - one of the hardest mineral compounds known to man. Able to resist staining, fading, surface moisture, scratches, cigarette burns, stiletto marks and general wear and tear.
- Core made from HDF (high density fibreboard), as opposed to the MDF core (medium density fibreboard) that many competitors use. HDF is a stronger and more stable board, more resistant to punctures from sharp objects or sudden pressure and much less likely to swell if in contact with water.
- Balterio laminate flooring is much harder and more wear-resistant than real wood flooring.

Low repeat pattern

For a more authentic looking floor Balterio laminate flooring has a very low repeat pattern ratio compared to many other laminate brands. Patterns are repeated as little as every 10 boards, ensuring your floor looks as authentic as possible.
